FROM THE DESK OF FATHER STARMAN—

Dear Parishioners and Friends of the Catholic Parishes of Western Holt and Boyd Counties,

Failures in big business enterprises, ups and downs on the stock exchange, court cases about disputed family inheritances: economic issues hit the headlines in our mass media and so often intrude tragically into the lives of hardworking, hard-saving people. When the annual lists of the world's richest individuals and nations are published, the discrepancy between the top and bottom rungs of the economic ladder may raise our eyebrows if not, unfortunately, our consciences. It is often said that it would profit us if we read the Scriptures with a Bible in one hand and the daily newspaper in the other, discerning how the words and deeds announced by both are related.

The gospel this weekend begins with a question to Jesus from a man in the crowd who tries to draw him into an inheritance dispute with his brother. The Mosaic teaching of Numbers and Deuteronomy is clear (Num 27:1-11; Deut 21:15-17), and Jesus refuses the role of interpreter, only cautioning his questioner about greed. Nor does Jesus refer to the tough words like that of the Preacher (Qoheleth) in the first reading from the wisdom book of Ecclesiastes. Only once every three years do we hear this sobering voice proclaim, "Vanity of vanities! All things are vanity!" "Vanity" in Hebrew can mean "vapor," a transitory, fleeting breath—and material wealth is like this. Jesus chooses to make his point as a storyteller, putting imaginative flesh on wisdom teaching with the parable of the Rich Fool.

The man is introduced as already rich, with a surplus harvest. He does not see that this blessing is from God, nor of the Jewish religious tradition and human prudence that demanded he make provision for himself and his whole community in case of any famine that might follow years of plenty. His "retirement plan" is a self-centered recital of "I will, I will, I will," well-punctuated by references to "my." The rich man considers that he owns everything: crops, barns, grains, and even his own soul. In a culture where a transaction at a street stall involved long and animated discussion between buyer and seller, the inapropriateness of such self-talk would not be lost on Jesus's audience. Likewise, it was expected that important decisions would be made in community, but this man has no one with whom he can or wants to talk—no family, cronies, advisers. His calculated option is to make and live in an isolated and alienating vacuum. This cannot be the option of Jesus's disciples.

Ironically, the parable uses the prophetic language of "tearing down" and "building up" (Jer 1:10), but in a sadly cheapened context. The rich man is the opposite of the courageous prophet who does this in the name of and for the purposes of God. Tithes and offerings were set aside in landowners' barns for the priests and Levites to collect, but for this man, barns are just for hoarding. For the early Christians, the storage barns of the community were to be the mouths of the poor (Rom 15:25-28) and the collection for the poor of Jerusalem. A contemporary and tragic irony persists with the silos that are stocked with nuclear "abundance" or "deterrence" while many of those living almost in their destructive shadows are hungry and disadvantaged. Closer to home, perhaps our Christian families, parishes, or communities need to have annual "disciple-ship garage sales" to dispose of our surplus and give the profits to those in need.

Ad multos annos!

Fr. Bernard Starman, Pastor

EMHC & LECTOR FORMATION

Catholics in good standing who are at least a rising junior in high school are eligible to register for EMHC/Lector training in August. The Archdiocesan formation component will consist of a video session that can be watched anytime in August beginning Tuesday, August 2. A scheduled time to watch the video as a group will be scheduled at each parish, if possible. Direct any questions to Michael Emmerich, Director of Liturgical Formation @ 402-553-5524 or Jan Kunz @ 340-2303.
