RECOGNIZE GOD IN YOUR ORDINARY MOMENTS - THE STARS WE FOLLOW

Everyone follows a star. It is human nature to seek. If we are rich, we want to be richer. If we are smart, we want to be smarter. If we are powerful, we want to be more powerful. We cannot stay in one place, so to speak — to say, "I am what I am, I have what I have, and it is enough." Even the very act of maintaining a status quo, be it health or wealth or spiritual goodness, requires action. It requires effort. It requires movement. This is human nature. There is nothing wrong with it. When we stop seeking, we die. But what are we looking for? Where are we going? I often wonder if the Magi knew what they were seeking — really, truly knew. They were seeking "the newborn king of the Jews," yes, but did they understand who he was? What he was? I don't see how they could have. They were wise men, but they were not prophets. They simply knew this was an endeavor they had to undertake. They knew it in their souls. There really is very little that we know for certain about the Magi. We don't know how many of them there were. We don't know their religion. We don't know where they came from. All we know for certain is that they listened to a voice they heard deep within themselves. And, heeding that voice, they went forth. And what did they find? They found what we all seek, even if, foolishly, we seek it in riches or power. They found the face of the Child. So tell me this. Of all the stars you could follow, which one does the voice — that one deep within you — tell you to chase? Point to it. And go forth.

O God, who by the leading of a star manifested your only Son to the peoples of the earth: Lead us, who know you now by faith, to your presence, where we may see your glory face to face; through Jesus Christ our Lord, who lives and reigns with you and the Holy Spirit, one God, now and for ever.

Amen.

Dear Parishioners and Friends of the Catholic Parishes of Western Holt and Boyd Counties,

Several years ago, Fermina Lopez, a native of Guatemala, found herself divorced, homeless and jobless, with three children to raise. She felt she had no choice but to flee her beloved homeland and make the perilous journey north in search of work. She was one of the lucky ones who survived the five-day trek across the desert and found employment in Phoenix, Arizona. When she was able to save enough money for smugglers fees, she sent for her children one by one, whom she had left in the care of her neighbors. The first two made it, but her youngest, who got as far as the US-Mexican border is feared dead. The Lopez family is one small unit among the 214 million international migrants in the world today.

This weekend's gospel (Matt 2:13-15, 19-23), tells of Joseph's dream in which a divine messenger relays Herod's intent to kill the infant Jesus. The angel instructs Joseph to flee with Mary and the child to Egypt, a traditional place of refuge for Israelites (e.g., Gen 42-48; 1 Kgs 11:40; Jer 26:21). They too faced a treacherous desert crossing, though the gospel tells none of those details. We can only imagine Mary and Joseph's fear as they stole away under the cover of darkness and all the hardships they endured. Matthew says nothing about what happened when they arrived in a strange place, having to navigate in an unfamiliar language and culture. Who helped them along the way? How did Joseph find work? What did Mary think about Joseph's dreams? The evangelist skips ahead to the Holy Family's departure from Egypt, quoting Hosea 11:1, "Out of Egypt I called my son." As he is wont to do, Matthew interprets all that happens in the life of Jesus as fulfillment of Scripture. By identifying Jesus with Moses and the exodus, he introduces the theme that Jesus is the new authoritative teacher of the law.

Just as Moses received a divine command to return home after the death of those who sought his life (Exod 4:19), so Joseph follows the angel's command to return home after the death of Herod the Great. Herod's sons, however, still pose a threat. Archelaus, the eldest, was no less cruel than his father, so Joseph is fearful of returning to Judea. Once again he is directed by a directed by an angel in a dream, and settles his family in the more peaceful Galilee. Again, Matthew interprets this move as fulfillment of Scripture. Matthew's meaning is puzzling, however, since there is no text in the scriptures that says, "He shall be called a Nazorean." It is likely that he intends an allusion to Isaiah 11:1, which speaks of a shoot (netzer) that will sprout from the stump of Jesse, thus highlighting Jesus's royal Davidic lineage.

The experience of the Holy Family having to flee for their lives into a foreign land gives strength and courage to millions of today's migrants. Those living in their countries of destination are challenged by the gospel to consider what kind of welcome they would want to offer newcomers if they were none other than Jesus's own family.

Happy New Year one and all!

Ad multos annos!
